

I oppose the weakening of Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law. There was a time before the "no-call" list that I could not sit at home in the evening without receiving as many as 20 calls. I no longer have this problem. I don't see any reason that the banks that I already do business with need to solicit my business any further. They have other options for extending services to me that are not an interruption of my family time. If this group is allowed to weaken the law then many people will be right back to having the phone for others convenience and not for our own convenience. Thank you for your consideration on this matter.
